Barcelona is truly a city like no other.

Barcelona receives the kind of annual tourism that resembles Paris and London, even though its city population is 1.6 million.

Having experienced explosive growth since the 1992 Olympics, Barcelona has come to represent the greatest parts of Catalan and Spanish culture, a metropolitan city full of history that is looking firmly into the future.

Growing Tourism means Increasing Property Value in capital and autonomous state.

Current (2014):

Annual Tourists

16.7 Million - Catalonia
Annual Tourists

◇ A GROWING METROPOLIS

Beyond the city, the urban area of Barcelona province extends to a population of 4.7 million inhabitants, making it the sixth-most populous urban area in Europe.

◇ The city continues to thrive despite an economic downturn that until recently affected much of Spain.

Estimated economic growth prospects of Barcelona and the state of Catalonia are 2.5 % for 2015.

◇ A multi-cultural population is one thing, but Barcelona has many other great attractions drawing attention, from its long history of holding important conferences such as the Mobile World Congress (MWC) and Barcelona international Motor Show, through to its stretches of sandy beaches lining the coast.

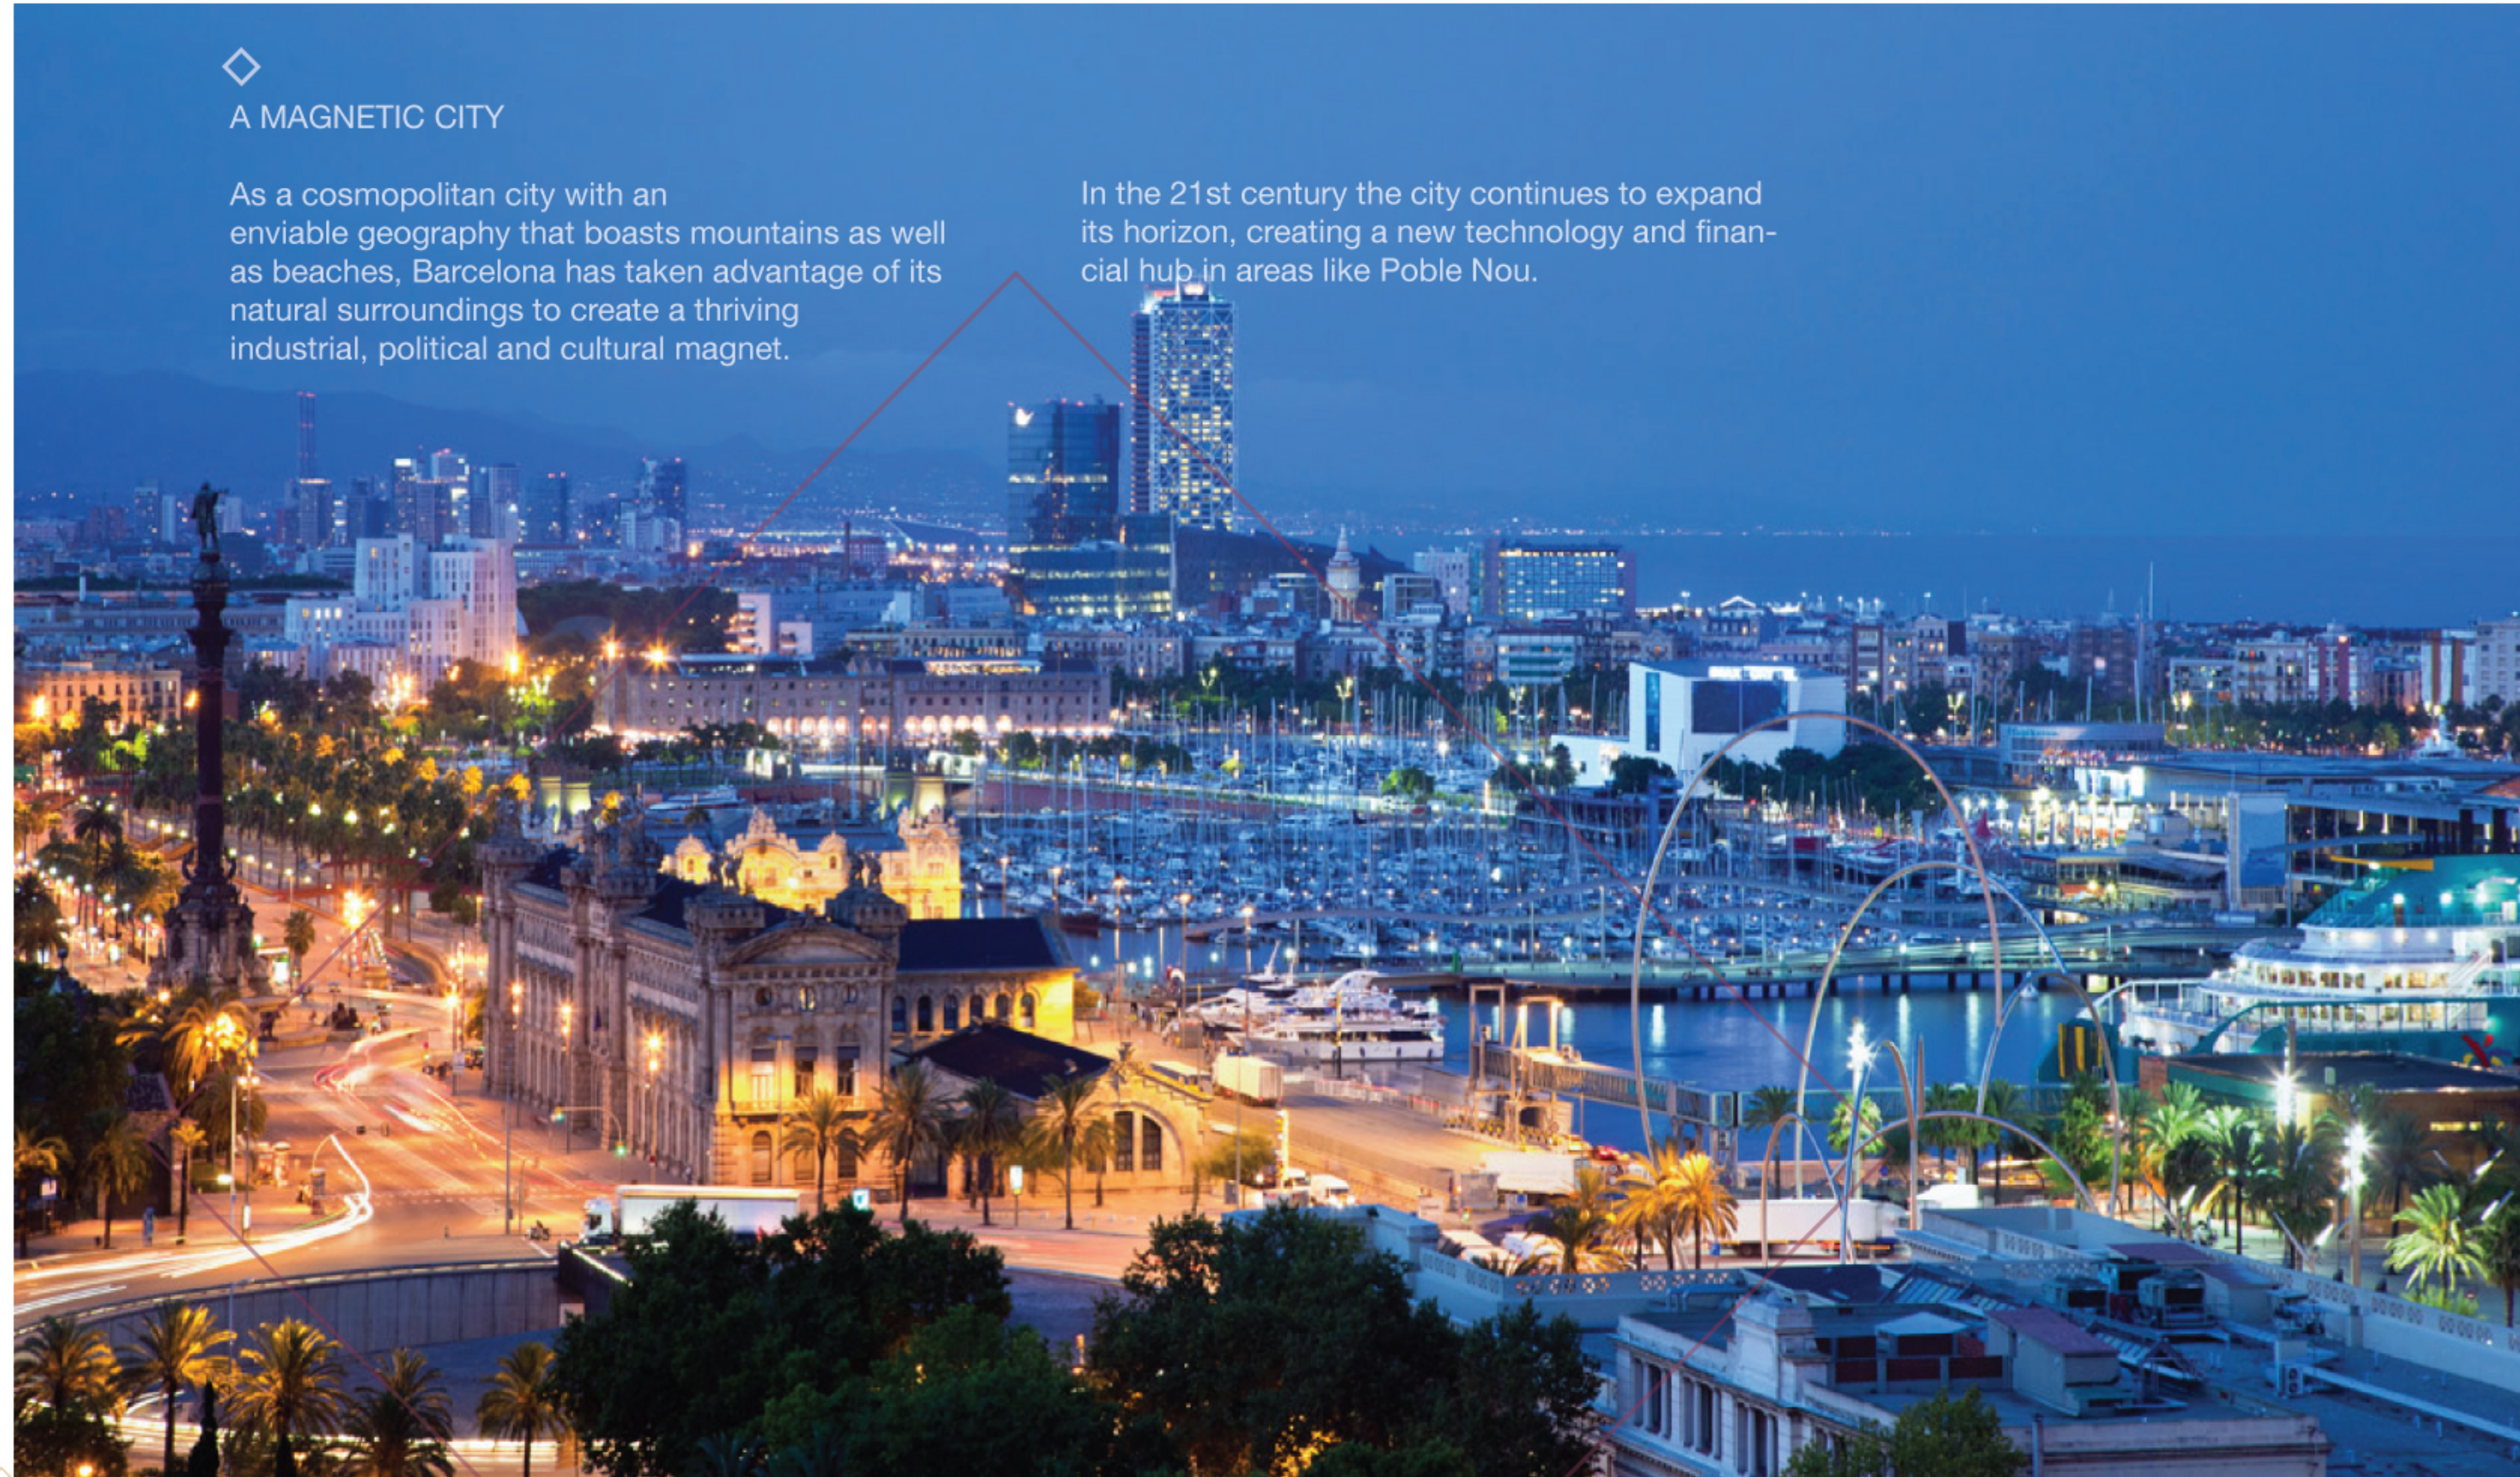

As a both a cultural and economic hub that is growing, there are many reasons that make it an incredible time to invest.

A MAGNETIC CITY

As a cosmopolitan city with an enviable geography that boasts mountains as well as beaches, Barcelona has taken advantage of its natural surroundings to create a thriving industrial, political and cultural magnet.

In the 21st century the city continues to expand its horizon, creating a new technology and financial hub in areas like Poble Nou.

The newly developed district of 22@ is creating a technological melting pot in the city, with bustling activity in the burgeoning fields of software and design.

MOBILETM WORLD CONGRESS BARCELONA

Conferences for every industry

Barcelona has been host to the Mobile World Congress, the most important mobile technology convention in the world, since its 2006 when it took over from Cannes, and has enjoyed continued success from its attendees' experiences.

So much so that in 2011 the city was named "GSMA Mobile. World Capital" and will continue to be the site of the GSMA Mobile World Congress through 2023.

Beyond this the city hosts events for the International Motor Show, the largest Manga convention in Spain (Saló del Manga), as well as a large variety of medical conferences.

An investment here means being part of an innovative project that will be created with the natural beauty of the area in mind.

With residents and guests being able to access both the beach area and natural parks, it is a project that takes into account its surroundings in creating a sustainable environment for the future.

With the creation of Satu Resort we envisage the zone to undergo further transformation into a luxurious area full of rich outdoor activity, including boating, surfing and exclusive events.

This area will become a key location for discerning clients looking for a beautiful picturesque environment in which to host their weddings, parties and other gatherings, further elevating the value of the area.

There is a growing mobility towards these areas to get away from the city's overcrowding, which has led to some notable names, including players from team FC Barcelona, to call Sitges and nearby Gava their new homes.
